A Parole Board Surprise
Naughty, Naughty Convicts

SAN SIMONE, CAL., Jan. 17.—Yesterday's happenings in California's San Quentin prison may persuade parole boards that criminals are not all well-meaning, harshly treated "victims of society" that should be turned loose to resume practicing their profession.

Four California parole board members who went to San Quentin full to the brim with human charity, were consulting with Warden James B. Holohan when four convicts, bursting in, injected "terror" into the proceedings.

They seized and beat Warden Holohan, who may die of a fractured skull, kidnapped four members of the parole board in a prison automobile. Fleeing, lacking tender parole board hearts, pursued the convicts, killed their leader, captured the others. Two parole board members were shot, one in the leg, another in the hip, in the hail of bullets, but not mortally wounded.

You can't settle the crime problem with sweet kindness only. Those parole board members and others may exercise their paroling power more cautiously hereafter.

The United States may enter the World Court against the will of a majority of its inhabitants, but at least a few members of the Senate realize the truth and put it plainly. Hiram Johnson, whose fight for American freedom from European entanglements and domination will always be gratefully remembered, says, truly:

"To say that our entry into this court will bring peace to the world is to me the most silly thing ever advanced by sensible human beings."

"There is no peace. War is in the air everywhere. Why do we enter the World Court? Not for America, not for our beloved republic. We enter it to meddle and muddle under a hysterical internationalism in those controversies that Europe has and that Europe will never get rid of."

Referring to European nations cheating this country in connection with war debts, Hiram Johnson said:

"We have had our lesson. My goodness! How often must we be kicked? We are going into the World Court not for America, not for the United States. We are going in for the benefit of Africa and Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, for Italy, for France, for England, and for all of those who constitute at present the League of Nations in foreign lands."

Warner Brothers have produced a moving picture, "Devil Dogs of the Air," that is seen by every intelligent American, and by every member of Congress.

In this picture you will see, not actors imitating airmen, but real fliers, officers and men of the United States Marine Fighting Corps. You will see operations on our airplane carriers, discharging planes as needed, trained officers and men of the United States Navy issuing brief orders. You see the flying, the smoke screens for the protection of surface ships, torpedo boats and landing parties, the marvelous efficiency of American airmen.

Young American men and women, seeing the actual flying, extraordinary courage and skill of American aviators, will be fired with the ambition to fly and help conquer man's newly acquired realm, the ocean of the air. And, from our marvelous efficient and courageous little "sampan" of national air fleet, you will learn that what we are doing is no less important than the fiercest of wars, the fiercest that America develops could suffer any loss of title air fleet to exceedingly unpleasant experiences.

Congressmen and governors of states, seeing this picture, will take pride in the efficiency of the American flier and will be humiliated by the knowledge that among the world's important nations we stand last in airplane defense.

One or five hundred of the bravest, most skillful flying airmen that ever lived could not protect six thousand miles of coast line and the millions of graces against an attacking fleet of four or five thousand invading planes.

There is the usual American "love story" in "War Dogs of the Air." Actor James Cagney looks extraordinarily brave and broad shouldered, although infinitely "tougher" men of the United States Marines than the actual fliers. A dear little girl runs out on the air field in high heels and an apron, rewarded with one kiss or more the hero, who hasn't really done anything. The real picture is in the flying of real American air fighters. Don't fail to see it.

DR. HIRSHMAN CALLS WITNESSES IN COURT

Roosevelt's Daughter Weds

BRIDAL Of Anna Dall SECRET

WED TO FORMER PRESS WRITER

(Pictures on Page 8)

By Associated Press
New York, Jan. 18.—In a simple ceremony, without flowers or attendants, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, and John Boettiger, former Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, were married today at the Roosevelt town house on East 65th st.

"They had parental blessings and the President telephoned his congratulations from Washington," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said after the wedding.

The couple left immediately by automobile for an unannounced destination on their honeymoon trip. The ceremony took place about 9 a. m.

The marriage culminated one of the most interesting of the President's family. Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Great secrecy surrounded the wedding, and in the event came until a President's secretary made the announcement in Washington.

No Word "Obey"

The ceremony was performed by J. Frederic Keenoch. He said: "It was the usual ceremony performed by the city clerk. As you know, the word 'obey' is not included."

Only members of the immediate family, including Mrs. James Roosevelt, Jr., the President's mother, attended the wedding.

The only two not there were Mrs. Roosevelt, in the White House, and Captain Joseph P. Kamp, Jr., whose assignment to the Harvard prevented his attendance.

In addition to the President's wife and mother, were Mrs. James Roosevelt, Jr., and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, John Roosevelt, and Harry Hooker, an intimate of the family.

Boettiger recently resigned from the Tribune to join the Motion Picture Producers' Association, with offices in New York.

He pronounced his name "Bet-tiger," with a hard "G."

Gave Age as 28

Mrs. Dall was divorced from her first husband, Curtis B. Dall, July 30 at Mendon, Nev. There are two children, "Stella," eight, and "Bursie," four.

The bride gave her age as 28 and her occupation as a writer. The bridegroom, who had been divorced on grounds of cruelty, Boettiger gave his age as 34, and his present address as 112 Central Park South.

Boettiger was divorced in Illinois November 7, 1933, not contesting a charge of cruelty.

CHARGE MADE
By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Washington, Jan. 18.—Charges that Norman H. Davis, romantic ambassador of the Roosevelt administration, has been engaged in "a diplomatic scheme" that might bring financial ruin to the $25,000,000 match industry in this country have been made to the White House, it was learned.

The charges were lodged by President J. H. Weaver of the Common Match Company, Cleveland, who is now in Washington to defend the American match industry of the securities being made upon it through the tariff and through the foreign competition of low priced labor.

Weaver charged that Davis "and some American-International hating interests and foreign match manufacturers" have brought a treaty of State Hull to slash the match tariff 50 per cent in the new reciprocal treaties now being negotiated with foreign countries.

He said they have asked the State Department to grant foreign manufacturers a quota of five million gross of matches annually. He said, would be the equivalent of 62 per cent of the American market.

He charged that Davis is an officer of a bondholders' committee of the International Match Company.

GUARDS LISTEN TO BRUNO AND WIFE

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)
Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—Anna Hauptmann's nerve broke today at the trial of her husband for his life.

"It's a lie," she shouted at a witness.

Mrs. Ella Auchenbach, a Hauptmann neighbor in the Bronx, was the witness. She testified Mrs. Hauptmann came to her two days after the kidnaping of baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., and said she and her husband had just returned from a trip.

"You lie, Mrs. Auchenbach, you lie!" Mrs. Hauptmann flared.

Counsel on both sides leaped to their feet. So did spectators.

Mrs. Hauptmann's face, usually pale and placid, was livid.

"I want that in the record," Attorney-General David I. Wilentz demanded with heat. "This is not the second, but the third time the Hauptmanns have interrupted."

"I want to know whether they or the court are trying this case. I know the court is."

"The defendant and his wife are under high tension," Edward J. Reilly, chief of the defense staff, pleaded in their behalf.

Justice Thomas W. Frenchard shook his head, dubiously.

"This woman who made this outburst is his wife," the court asked.

Reilly nodded.

"Madam," Justice Frenchard said to Mrs. Hauptmann, "don't you see the impropriety of this outburst. I am asking you, don't you see?"

Mrs. Hauptmann stood silent.

"Will you promise you won't do it again?"

"I like to try but sometimes I can't help," she apologized.

Her voice broke.

"I'll not again offend these gentlemen and the jury."

State May Rest Bruno Case Today

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—New Jersey may rest its murder case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann at any time—perhaps today.

"Anytime now, I may turn to the judge and say, 'Your honor, the state rests its case,' Attorney-General David I. Wilentz said just before court convened. "The state's case is definitely in now, although 40 more witnesses are ready to testify."

WOMAN NEIGHBOR PALES AT SHOUT Tells of Bruno Injury

regent John Wallace of the New Jersey state police.

Mrs. Ella Achenbach, heavy middle-aged woman followed Wallace to the stand. She said she lived six or seven blocks from Hauptmann's home in the Bronx.

Q—Did you see Mr. Bruno Richard Hauptmann after the kidnapping? A—One or two days after the kidnapping I saw Mr. Hauptmann and she said they had just come back from a trip.

Then came Mrs. Hauptmann outburst: "You lie."

Suddenly Goes Limp

For a moment it seemed as if Mrs. Hauptmann would spring from her chair. Then she suddenly went limp and smiled sheepishly. The woman witness apparently had been depended upon as an all-time witness for Hauptmann.

Mrs. Achenbach paled when Mrs. Hauptmann shouted out that she was lying. She turned her eyes imploringly upon the judge.

The courtroom was in an uproar, all counsel jumped to their feet and started talking. Justice Trenchard demanded the cry of Mrs. Hauptmann remain in the record. He said:

"Your Honor, either the court is conducting this trial as if it were a farce, or Mrs. Hauptmann, I know it is the court."

Defense Attorney Rellly started to interrupt the Attorney-General but Wilents would not let him.

Wilents continued:

"The state demands the right to bring witnesses here without having them called names."

"Of course, of course," said Justice Trenchard.

The judge turned to Mrs. Hauptmann.

"This woman has made the outburst is the defendant's wife. Madam, don't you see the impropriety of interrupting this trial?"

"I'm sorry, very sorry, Your Honor," replied Mrs. Hauptmann. "I don't think that's wrong. Will you please the witness and jury will not interrupt again?"

"Well, I try to do it but sometimes I can't help it," said Mrs. Hauptmann in a broken voice.

It was at this juncture that Justice Trenchard said the same sternly to maintain order from the defendant. Hauptmann's head bent and his hands were clasped in prayer.

"I've done the best I can in this highly embarrassing situation," said Justice Trenchard.

Excitement Dies Down

After the excitement in the courtroom subsided, Wilents resumed questioning of Mrs. Achenbach.

Q—Did you observe anything that morning? A—When he went down my neighbor told me she had supported himself on the side of the stoop.

Mrs. Achenbach said Mrs. Hauptmann explained "Richard, hurt his leg during the witness examination, and when we were brought further development of the implication that Hauptmann, in his alleged fall from the kidnap had been received the leg injury."

Chief counsel for the defense Rellly took up the cross-examination.

Q—Mrs. Hauptmann used to work for you. A—Yes, in 1928.

Q—And after she worked for you? A—Yes, she worked for me.

Q—Isn't it a fact that she didn't pay her and haven't paid her to this day? A—Ha, ha! I did that what she says—well I did. The spectators roared at this reply and Justice Trenchard, only becoming more and more displeased, barked for order.

Rellly grunted a "Yes" and said she saw the Hauptmann limp.

Q—When did he come over in your house? A—About six o'clock. About 15 minutes after Mrs. Hauptmann.

Q—Did he carry a cane? A—No.

Q—A crutch? A—No.

Q—Did he sound of illness? A—No.

Q—But you say you saw him massage his leg, or scratch his leg? A—Massage.

The spectators laughed again.

Court Raps for Order

Justice Trenchard rapped for order and glared at the snickering spectators.

Q—Do you know whether he had rheumatism, or grown too tall, or an itch? A—No.

Q—Then, you say you saw him limp and cling to the porch railing when he left? A—Yes.

Q—Where the stoop slippery? A—No.

Q—Had you given Hauptmann something to drink? A—Emphatically—No, sir!

Q—Were there any other things in the house? A—Yes, sir! Hauptmann, the unexplainable.

End Feb. 9?

By Associated Press

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—It's anyone's guess as to how much longer the Hauptmann trial will last.

The prosecution hopes to wind up next Wednesday. The defense has said it will need two weeks for its presentation. Summons will take at least two days—maybe more.

Add them all up and the date for Feb. 9.

Any estimate is subject to change without notice.

They'll Say Hauptmann Lies!

Ready to testify, if necessary, that the late Isidor Fisch died penniless and had nothing to do with the Lindbergh kidnapping or the Lindbergh ransom money, Fisch's brother, sister, and sister-in-law are here from Germany, awaiting summons as witnesses for the prosecution. It is expected they will be introduced in rebuttal, when—and if—Bruno Richard Hauptmann tells his story of having innocently received the "blood" money from Fisch. Shown at luncheon in their hotel are Czerka Fisch, the sister-in-law; Pinchus Fisch, the brother; and Hanna Fisch, the dead man's sister. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Ransom Cash Shown to Jury

Presents to Mrs. Achenbach's appearance on the stand and Mrs. Hauptmann's outburst, the Lindbergh ransom bills—thousands of dollars worth of them—were laid out on a railing before the eyes of the jury.

Before the first time the money had been displayed in open court.

The jury of four women and eight men gazed upon the money with widening eyes.

Police Sergeant Wallace of the New Jersey state police was on the stand, the second witness in the ransom money which was found on a railing before the eyes of the jury.

Money was produced as evidence over vigorous objections of the defense.

The money had been in a large cardboard box. Wilents opened an envelope which was in the box and drew out a great sheet of $10 bills and other bills.

There was a pile of them in two different stacks.

The attorney-general showed the bills to Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, then spread them out on a railing in front of the jury after they were admitted as evidence.

Wallace, when he took the stand, was questioned by Attorney-General Wilents.

Q—On Sept. 18, 1933, tell us what you did? A—With New York police and Department of Justice agents, we went to the vicinity of Hauptmann's home in the Bronx and remained there until about 11:30 p.m. when we were relieved. We returned at seven o'clock and found the money split into three groups.

Mrs. Hauptmann came out to meet us. She said she had seen the money. A—The defendant left the money in the house. He told me to take his wife to work. A—Not as far as I know.

Judge Steps Down Off Bench

As Wallace described, from photographs, the Hauptmann home and the defendant's appearance the morning of the 18th, Justice Trenchard stepped down from the bench to peer over the witness shoulder.

Q—What did you do next? A—We saw the defendant's car. It came out of the driveway in a dark car.

The detective told how the police showed Hauptmann as he drove along the street.

"We continued the trail of the Hauptmann car until we reached Park avenue in the vicinity of 175th street."

At Tremont avenue, Wallace said Hauptmann's car was blocked by a street jammer. He had driven the witness said at "a fairly good rate of speed, 35-45 miles an hour."

Examine Safe Deposit Box

Hauptmann and the officers Wallace said, went to the Central Savings Bank in the Bronx, where his safe deposit box was opened. The witness said no gold certificates were found there.

Q—Did the papers in the box occupy all the space? A—It was pretty well crowded.

The party then went to the 2nd precinct police station and a statement was written by Hauptmann.

Q—What was his next question? A—He asked his next question. He asked his next question. He asked his next question.

Q—What did you do next? A—We saw the defendant's car. It came out of the driveway in a dark car.

Plane Model Put in Evidence

Wilents brought out that the plane had been initiated by the defense but was otherwise was in the condition as found.

It was offered in evidence. Frederick J. Pope, of defense counsel objected to the introduction of the model. Justice Trenchard admitted the exhibit when the state promised to link it later with the kidnapping.

Wallace said this initial "It" was on the plane when found.

Q—What else did you find at

Money! Money! Again

The state's cry of "money! money! money!" in its attempt to convict Bruno Hauptmann in the Lindbergh kidnapping, will be brought out again when Cecelia Barr, above, cashier in a Sheridan square movie house, takes the stand. She is expected to testify that Hauptmann passed one of the ransom bills before Isadore Fisch died.

JURY Gazes at RANSOM

In evidence subject to connection with the case.

"We're going to show now that it was loaded with ransom money," he said.

$11,930 Found in Shellac Can

Pope objected to the introduction in evidence of the ransom cash as having no "materiality" unless shown to have a connection with the case.

Q—I understand you found some money in the shellac can. A—Yes.

Q—How much money? A—$11,930.

Q—What kind of money? A—Justice Trenchard sustained the objection.

Wilents thrust a heavy portfolio full of money into the trooper's lap. "Pick it out for me," he directed and the trooper started to take out packages after package.

Q—Are these bills in the packages just as they were found? A—Yes.

Q—That there in that can were the bills as found? A—Yes.

The bills were produced by Wilents, as the state sought to develop they were in the same order as listed by the Morgan Banking company.

Jury Box Rall Lined With Money

The jury box rail was completely lined with money. The ransom bills, the newspapers in which they were wrapped, the towels which covered the money in the boxes were all laid out on the rail. There were eight men and four women in the jury to stare at.

Wilents turned to show this bill to those already on the jury box and with the announcement in formal tones:

"This is the $10-dollar bill—fifty $10-dollar gold certificates."

He turned to Justice Trenchard and said:

"We are showing all of these bills before the serial numbers listed."

Jury Rellly Pill roved her eyes along the money-lined rail and shook her head.

Indicate Points on Bronx Map

Henry Eichlin, the Bronx engineer, returned to the stand for cross-examination by Chief Defense Counsel Rellly when court resumed today.

Rellly, a long pointer in hand, began a discussion with the witness of the map of the Bronx area in which Eichlin indicated yesterday various places associated with the crime.

Hauptmann leaned forward and watched with attention.

The attorney had Eichlin point out the various spots which figured in the ransom contracts of Dr. John F. Condon with the kidnappers.

Q—Where do you say your map indicates Dr. Condon's residence? A—On the east side of Decatur avenue.

Rellly directed the witness to write "C" on the location of the ransom intermediary's residence "to the jury will know weeks from now."

Dr. Condon's residence was about 4 miles from St. Raymond's cemetery, Eichlin said, responding to Rellly's questioning.

Wilents asked him what routes could be used to go from the Hauptmann home to Woodlawn or St. Raymond's cemetery.

Q—There are a half a dozen different streets could be used? A—Yes.

Eichlin placed a "J" on the map to indicate the last station on the Jerome avenue branch of the New York subway system.

"That line runs near Woodlawn Cemetery, in which Dr. Condon and 'John' talked for an hour and a quarter, shortly before the ransom was paid."

On redirect, Attorney-General Wilents asked:

Area Thinly Populated

Q—With particular reference to Woodlawn Cemetery, the territory surrounding it, is it thickly populated and dense, or is it quiet, sort of country appearing? A—It is quiet, sort of country appearing.

Q—Are there any residences north, south, east or west in the vicinity? A—Not in the immediate vicinity.

The query referred specifically to the cemetery gate where "John" and "John" talked.

Q—How many hundred feet away would the first house be? A—Approximately 1000 feet.

Wilents drew the witness's attention to St. Raymond's Cemetery on the map.

Q—Northeast of the cemetery, how many residences? A—In that particular block, one residence.

Q—Is that also a country area?

Handcuffed to Hauptmann

From the time of arrest in the morning until he began to write, Hauptmann was handcuffed to Wallace, Fisher and Rellly.

The courtroom tensed a bit, in anticipation Fisher would attempt to elicit testimony that Hauptmann was forced by police to use the ransom note spilling as he would further link himself to the kidnapping.

Wallace told how he returned to search the Hauptmann house and escape the day of the arrest.

Q—As a matter of fact didn't you take back to the house and look for the money exactly where Bruno Richard Hauptmann told Inspector Lyons he put it? A—No one ever gave me any information.

Q—Where did he say he got the money? A—He said he got the money from the movie house, the Sheridan square movie house, takes the stand.

She is expected to testify that Hauptmann passed one of the ransom bills before Isadore Fisch died.

Quickly Gathers Ransom Bills

As court recessed for five minutes Robert Peacock, assistant attorney-general, gathered the ransom money up quickly from the jury box rail.

Fisher shuffled to the stand to face the cross-examination of C. Lloyd Fisher as court resumed.

Fisher asked Wallace to relate your conversations with the defendant Hauptmann at the time of the arrest, just as it happened."

Wallace did so.

Q—Did he say he had any more money? A—He said he had no more gold certificates, only some old coins.

Wallace told Fisher he had not heard testimony that Hauptmann told the police he had "a hundred dollars."

Fisher turned to the preparation of specimen writings by Hauptmann at the request of the police.

TO SEE THAT BRUNO BEHAVES

Although Bruno Richard Hauptmann is reported apologetic over his outburst in court against a federal officer whom he accused of lying on the witness stand, his guards are taking no chances on further displays of "however" on the part of the defendant. Deputy Sheriff Hovey Low and the state trooper, shown leading Hauptmann into court, are reinforced today by additional police. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

No Trial Tomorrow

By Associated Press

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, at the request of the prosecution and defense counsel, today determined to adjourn court over Saturday.

Counsel told the court the weekend recess would save time.

During the two-day recess, counsel and their accounts will attempt to reach an agreement regarding Hauptmann's brokerage accounts so that only a few accounts will have to be testified.

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Is it a quiet place at night? Yes, sir.

Q—What I'm trying to find out, is it a densely populated area in the vicinity of St. Raymond's cemetery? A—It is not.

Witness Views Aerial Photo

Q—Now tell me how far it is from Mr. Hauptmann to Woodlawn cemetery, and to St. Raymond's cemetery? A—From Woodlawn cemetery to a farm would be 4 miles. A—From Hauptmann's home to Woodlawn cemetery is 2.7 miles. To St. Raymond's cemetery is 4.3 miles.

Wilents concluded and Rellly brought to the witness an aerial photograph of the area about St. Raymond's cemetery.

Eichlin identified the picture and Rellly began a discussion of the gateway, which the witness said he had not included in his map.

After being held on the stand for more than a half hour giving geographical details of the Bronx to Rellly and Wilents, Eichlin was excused.

Wilents concluded and Rellly brought to the witness an aerial photograph of the area about St. Raymond's cemetery.

Eichlin identified the picture and Rellly began a discussion of the gateway, which the witness said he had not included in his map.

After being held on the stand for more than a half hour giving geographical details of the Bronx to Rellly and Wilents, Eichlin was excused.

Adela Rogers St. Johns Writes: BRUNO'S WIFE LOOKS DESPERATE IN RAGE

SNEER TURNS TO SNARL AS SHE HURLS INSULT

'Getting Out of Hand'

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS
Courtroom, Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—Her heavy lips drawn from the habitual sneer into a snarl, her frog-like eyes starting from their sockets, Anna Hauptmann was on her feet in the courtroom yelling:
"YOU'RE A LIAR."

A picture of feminine rage, Bruno Hauptmann's wife shattered the courtroom as she flung the insult into the face of a large, placid woman on the witness stand.

The former neighbor had just testified that a few days after the Lindbergh kidnapping, Mrs. Hauptmann told her she had "just returned from a trip."

The Hauptmanns are getting out of hand.

Their solidarity is breaking into a thousand pieces.

A woman in rage so violent that it makes her break every rule of law and order, is not a pretty sight.

Yesterday, Hauptmann was like some figure out of Poe as he stood there, his accent and guttural voice paralyzing every listener.

Looks Desperate

But Mrs. Hauptmann, a woman with strange heavy lips, was at all pretty to look upon.

She looked desperate. That was the word that came to me as she stood there screaming.

The looked utterly DESPERATE. Mrs. Aschenbach, of the Bronx, was a surprise witness. They, the Hauptmanns, didn't know she was going to testify.

She came in, large and rather motherly, and quite self-contained, and she took the oath with solemnity and waddled heavily onto the stand.

She spoke quietly. There seemed no doubt in her mind concerning what she testified—in fact, she hardly seemed to realize its terrific importance.

And there Mrs. Hauptmann exploded in her startled face and again in the Hauptmann courtroom was belated let loose.

Then, she was sitting down, and that smile, which always seems like a sneer, was on her face.

While Wilentz, himself righteously angry, was demanding to know whether the Hauptmanns were running this trial or the court was running it.

Uncontrolled people after all, the Hauptmanns, when the mask is off. When the strange violent solidarity is ripped away by emotion.

Not quiet people, used to obeying the laws of courtrooms, not people who when emotion rises, control themselves well.

They had tied a very large tin can on Bruno Richard Hauptmann this morning. It was loaded with Lindbergh ransom bills, and it rattled in the courtroom like the tin can on the tail of a bullet.

Meticulously, with an attention to detail that was fantastic, the judge John Wallace dragged the shelves can from behind the boards and the Hauptmanns stared at him.

The gaze of the jury swung to Mrs. Hauptmann, because she said she was present when they found that can.

Defense Counsel Pope, who is a fitfully referred to as a "troublemaker," was on his feet instantly.

No Connection

His objection was that the bills had no connection with the defendant in this case, Bruno Hauptmann. Judge Trenchard considered that for a moment. He looked, I thought, slightly puzzled. He said:

"Well, now Mr. Pope, it seems to me they furnish some connection."

They were in HAUPTMANN'S GARAGE.

They were carefully hidden, the two packages wrapped in newspapers and the money wrapped and stuffed in the tin can behind boards.

They were wrapped in newspaper, carefully initialed and now in evidence, newspapers dated JUNE 25, 1932, and SEPTEMBER 1, 1932.

Now Mr. Hauptmann stated at the time of his arrest that this money had been given him by one Leader Fisch, now dead.

Mr. Fisch, said for Germany, where he later died, in DECEMBER, 1932.

Obviously, therefore Mr. Fisch had wrapped those thousands and thousands of dollars of Lindbergh ransom money in those particular newspapers.

No connection with Hauptmann? Found in his own garage, behind concealed boards, concealed behind wrapped in American newspapers of a date LONG AFTER Mr. Fisch said for Germany? Explained to Hauptmann as money given him without his knowledge by the departed Mr. Fisch?

If he didn't know that was "hot money" why, when he found it, didn't he take it down and put it in the safe deposit box? Didn't he keep the rest of his papers at the central bank?

Now it may have seemed a little careless of Hauptmann, in case he did kidnap the Lindbergh baby

In Ottawa Now

By International News Service
Ottawa, Jan. 18.—Albert S. Osborn, handwriting expert who testified in the Hauptmann trial for the prosecution, testified as a defense witness today for Senator Hance Logan and Captain Freeman Hatfield in the Gypsum Queens case.

Hatfield and Logan are defending a government suit to recover $71,000 paid to Hatfield for loss of the schooner Gypsum Queen off the Irish coast in 1917.

and did get this money from Colonel Lindbergh, to have merely hidden it in his garage.

I spent some time on that one. First of all, we must remember that two years and some months had gone by since the ransom money was paid.

That's quite a long time. In case Hauptmann was guilty, he must have hidden it under a false security. It is a very well known fact that criminals grow careless.

Fallacy

That is a very well-known fallacy with criminals.

Another thing. Department of Justice Special Agent Sisk, the one Hauptmann called a liar in open court yesterday, testified he found buried in the Hauptmann garage area and that Hauptmann admitted he had had some of the money buried in it.

That admission, according to Sisk, was made on September 20, 1932.

The newspapers, in which part of the money in the tin can was wrapped, were dated September 1, 1932. Just a few weeks before, said Sisk, indicated.

If Hauptmann thought the money was all innocent, what in the world was he fussing around with it like that for?

BRUNO DATA

TAKEN BY COURT

By Associated Press.
New York, Jan. 18.—The appellate division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn today took all papers and documents relating to the Hauptmann case, which had been in possession of J. M. Fawcett, former counsel to Bruno Richard Hauptmann, for a study to determine whether they are of value to the defense.

Edward J. Reilly, chief of Hauptmann's counsel, had brought suit to gain possession of the papers. Fawcett had told them to obtain the balance of a fee he said was due him.

The study will be to determine from a legal standpoint what might be of value to Hauptmann in defending himself.

Fawcett was asked whether there were any handwriting exhibits among the papers. He said:

"There are some."

Wilentz, Reilly in Race For 'Best Dressed' Title

DAPPER PROSECUTOR LIKES QUIET ENGLISH STYLES

By Universal Service
Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—Dapper Attorney General David T. Wilentz, brilliant young prosecutor of the Hauptmann trial, is rivaling dapper Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly for the title of best-dressed lawyer.

Wilentz, who goes in for more conservative clothes than the fashionable Reilly, likes his suits cut in the English drape manner, of quiet, solid color fabrics, with carefully harmonizing shirt, tie and socks.

Just so that the defense counsel will not take all the style laurels, the sleek-haired attorney general makes it a practice to wear a different color combination each day in court, alternating suits of navy blue, tobacco brown and gray.

With the brown suit he wears a gray shirt with a white collar and a dark brown tie. His socks are a

Despite the nasty weather, which included snow, rain and penetrating cold winds, the flier still was without topcoat or hat. During the long court sessions thus far the famous flier has not missed a word of the testimony.

Ransom Cash Seen In Radio

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 18

—Fred Hahn, of the Bronx, came here accompanied by two police officers.

It was learned Hahn was ready to testify that in July, 1932, he saw a "rent of yellow back bills" in a radio in the home of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, on trial at Flemington for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Hahn, it was said, would remain here until time for him to testify.

He told authorities that he called on Hauptmann and the latter showed him a new 1600 radio. While the man accused of the Lindbergh kidnapping was in another room, Hahn looked in the old radio and saw the bills, he said.

Bruno Chats

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—After his unexpected outburst in court to charge a witness with lying, Bruno Richard Hauptmann asked that his wife, Anna, come to his cell to talk to him a little while.

Hauptmann's emotional reaction after his outburst in the courtroom was to seek the comfort of a short chat with the person nearest to him.

JURORS Sees for Himself Near TEARS

SHOCKED BY TESTIMONY

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 18.—The stolid indifference to expert testimony against him which Bruno Richard Hauptmann has exhibited from the start of his trial is beginning to give way to a look of anxiety.

Both the phlegmatic German carpenter and his wife stole frequent glances at the men and women of the jury as state's witnesses told how the tiny body of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was found in the woods near Mt. Rose road.

What they saw was four women, close to tears, and eight men, their features set and grim.

Mrs. Elbel Stockton, mother of a seven-year-old child, white faced, listened and twisted her handkerchief.

Mrs. Breiford, mother of a boy running messages in the balcony, sat very still.

Throughout the rest of Colonel Lindbergh's testimony, Mrs. Stockton, who performed the autopsy, was particularly harrowing.

AGENTS Nab Killer GANG

WOMAN PUTS "FINGER" ON 4

By Associated Press
New York, Jan. 18.—The "Tul-Stat Gang," whose trail is red with robbery and blood, was smashed by the Department of Justice's crack operatives today. Five persons, two of them already under sentences of death, were arrested as the government men struck three times in swift succession. One of the prisoners, a woman, was the unknown "finger" that pointed out the other four. The prisoners are: Robert Malt, 35; Walter Legenza, 41; Martin Farrell, 35; Edwin Gale, 35 and Mary McKeever. Malt and Legenza, two of the country's most desperate criminals, were caught separately, each in bed. Both are under sentence of death in Virginia for killing a postal truck driver. The McKeever woman, unwittingly, was the guide who led Fay and his men first to Farrell and Gale, next to Legenza and finally—at half past three this morning, as he slept—to the notorious Malt. The "break" in the hunt came when Fay learned that the McKeever woman, who has been hunted as an accessory in the escape of Malt and Legenza from the Richmond jail last September 29 was in town. Shadows trailed her and one by one she led the agents to the men.

PODERJAY STICKS To Hunger Strike

Aboard S. S. President Polk at Sea, Jan. 18 (AP)—Evan Poderjay, the former Yugoslav officer who defies a ship's brig, continued his 24-hour hunger strike today, protesting what he calls "cannibal's fare." Ship's officers indicated they would observe orders which entail Poderjay's detention until the ship is well into the Atlantic. Poderjay is being taken to New York, where he wed Miss Agnes Tuveson in December, 1933, to face a charge of bigamy growing out of her disappearance. The vessel sailed Tuesday from Genoa.

Northampton, Jan. 18.—Hitchhiking with credentials is the method two Leeds CCC youths were taking today in their attempt to beat the depression. They are hiking and working their way to Baltimore, with a letter in their pockets from Mayor James P. Roland. JUDGE SWORN For 7 More Years

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 18.—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, presiding over the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, was sworn in today in his home for a seven-year term. The ceremony was conducted before a few friends by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Bodine. Justice Trenchard, whose term expires tomorrow, was reappointed Tuesday by Governor Harold G. Hoffman and was immediately confirmed by the Senate.

INNOCENT VICTIM AGAIN ARRESTED

Still pursued by the evil genius that sent him to Dedham jail for nine months for passing bad checks, Wilbert Harold MacConnell of Brockton, an innocent man, had to face another charge in Springfield today.

This time, however, Inspector John J. Avery of Quincy, who prosecuted him, was with MacConnell to make sure that he was freed. Faulty identifications had convicted the man before. MacConnell was arrested for Springfield when police there were going over their records in a search for suspects who might have passed a bad check on January 3. "Identifying witnesses" looked at the rogues gallery picture of MacConnell that was never destroyed despite the fact the man was proved innocent. That was the man, they said. But in court today Lieutenant the rogues gallery picture of MacConnell as his first exhibit. The man is wearing a moustache now, and has been wearing it for months. The pictures show him smooth-shaven. And just in case this isn't enough, there are 88 ERA workers in Brockton who are ready to swear that MacConnell was at work there on the days the checks were passed. Obviously, they point out, he couldn't have been in Springfield as well. The tragic part of MacConnell's case is that after serving nine months for a crime he didn't commit he received no recompense. During his time in jail his wife and four children had to go on welfare and his parents lost their home.

PRIEST Battles League

FR. COUGHLIN FEARS WAR

By Universal News Service

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest of the Shrine of the Little Flower, today warned the American people they will be plunged into the wars and blood, hatreds and rivalries of Europe unless the League of Nations' Court is rejected by the United States Senate.

Father Coughlin declared: "The so-called world court is nothing more than the evoked of five and multitudes of the League of Nations. "The best traditions of our country were used to refrain from European entangling alliances. This is the mind of President Washington. This is the mind of the Monroe doctrine. It is contrary to the mind of the professional internationalists.

Cites Bankers

"Who are most desirous of establishing identity with the so-called World Court? One word answers it: The international bankers—the international bankers who selfish interest in international investments is more pre-eminence to them than our national advancement. "Father Coughlin believes the Roosevelt administration has made a grievous error in its support of the league court and in its desire to push the United States into it at this time. He said: "Ninety-five per cent of the distress suffered by American industry is caused by international financiers, while willing to swallow the name of international machinations.

Plans Address

"On a former occasion, in 1917, we were invited into the World War to protect the foreign investments of the internationalists. "On a future occasion, when every capital in Europe is sitting on a powder keg, we are paying the way for a terrible tragic world war in which our American people would be well pre-empted to keep the world safe for the internationalists. "Father Coughlin made these statements while he was in Washington consulting with political officials and with representatives of the National Union for Social Justice, which he has created. "He said he will discuss the League Court, and the international interests back of it, in his radio address Sunday afternoon. He continued: "I am in full accord with the excellent address made against the so-called world court by Senator Johnson. "The agitators for our entrance into the League of Nations, and the League Court, make their agitations on the ground that they desire to help the European nations maintain peace. "Our advice is not desired by the European nations. They desire to obtain only our financial support.

Small Minorities

"We should not be so simple and precocious in our judgment as to assume that our European debtors who have repudiated their financial contracts would be moved to accept our intellectual contributions. "The league, and its court, assert as one of their pretended purposes to protect small minorities existing within nations. Unlike the league tribunal, which is innocent of arms, munitions and force, the League Court, through the League of Nations, plans to mobilize armies and mobilize the navies of the world to defend the so-called minorities. "In this, without any stretch of the imagination, the league court should be regarded as an international supreme court, dominating every tribunal wherever set up, to which the victors of national wars might take refuge. "A band of Communists in New York city, holding allegiance to the international red flag, would call upon this so-called world court to protect their mischievous and impudic activities. "There are only a few of the reasons which occur to me at the moment why America should adhere to its own interests and should set its own house in order without being plunged into the evils and jealousies of the world. "I am opposed to American entrance into the League Court for for nothing more than that it is a trap baited with the smelly cheese of world peace."

Georgia Votes Against World Court

By Universal Service

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 18.—The Georgia House of Representatives adopted, 91 to 85, a resolution declaring American entry into the League of Nations Court and asking Georgia's United States Senators to vote against American adherence to the court.

The resolution was introduced in the House by Representative Hartfield of Atlanta, while a similar measure was introduced in the Senate by Senator Lester of Augusta. The Senate resolution must lay over till today, under the rules. Senator Lester will press for a vote at today's session. A heated debate revealed that many who oppose the resolution did so for reasons other than approval of the court.

Gets Applause

An Representative Hartfield introduced the House resolution, the Georgia House today. He said: "The resolution does not need debate. You are familiar with the court question. It is before you. It has been introduced in Georgia. The people speak overwhelmingly against American entrance in the so-called world court. "He said America would have no part in selecting the court judges, who would decide questions affecting this nation. The court, he said, is decidedly against the payment of foreign debts in this country. "Even the Georgia bonds issued to foreign countries by reconstruction war corporations would come under court jurisdiction, he asserted. Representative Lindsay of DeKalb said: "We should devote our time to local affairs, and leave the matter in the hands of President Roosevelt. "I know that William Randolph Hearst is against it, and admire him, but the United States and all nations are in a bad fix. We should leave this to the President. "By unanimous consent the resolution was amended so that it would be directly to the governor for approval.

MORTGAGE RATE SLASH

Mortgage rates on homes in Massachusetts will be reduced to 2½ per cent on March 1 by all mutual savings banks if a recommendation by the executive committee of the savings banks association is followed by member banks. In announcing the reduction, Carl M. Sullivan, president of the association, said: "While naturally our first duty is to our depositors, who are our number one borrowers, it is not without regret that we are forced to make this change, however, it is not thought to affect dividends paid to depositors. "Think of it! A free Rental Bureau right in the heart of the downtown shopping center, R. H. Small Minorities

"We should not be so simple and precocious in our judgment as to assume that our European debtors who have repudiated their financial contracts would be moved to accept our intellectual contributions. "The league, and its court, assert as one of their pretended purposes to protect small minorities existing within nations. Unlike the league tribunal, which is innocent of arms, munitions and force, the League Court, through the League of Nations, plans to mobilize armies and mobilize the navies of the world to defend the so-called minorities. "In this, without any stretch of the imagination, the league court should be regarded as an international supreme court, dominating every tribunal wherever set up, to which the victors of national wars might take refuge. "A band of Communists in New York city, holding allegiance to the international red flag, would call upon this so-called world court to protect their mischievous and impudic activities. "There are only a few of the reasons which occur to me at the moment why America should adhere to its own interests and should set its own house in order without being plunged into the evils and jealousies of the world. "I am opposed to American entrance into the League Court for for nothing more than that it is a trap baited with the smelly cheese of world peace."

NORRIS HITS AT LEAGUE COURT

Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

Washington, Jan. 18.—A major blow to President Roosevelt's plan for prompt American adherence to the World Court was struck today. Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, announced he would vote against adherence unless the Senate is given exclusive power to submit American questions to this tribunal. Norris broke with the President, having campaigned for him in 1932 and supported him consistently ever since on domestic questions. He declared the terms laid down for American adherence would fail to protect American interests.

Norris' announcement startled his colleagues, since he voted for American adherence to the Court in 1928. Norris explained, however, that the Court had failed to function "as a true judicial tribunal" and he felt the United States should protect itself against being entrained in future political quarrels with Europe. He promised to vote for American entrance to the Court if his reservation is adopted. The reservation condition . . . is upon the express condition and understanding that no dispute or question, in which the United States Government is a party, shall be submitted to said permanent Court of International Justice unless such submission had been approved by the United States Senate by a two-thirds vote. Norris explained: "This would deny the court any jurisdiction over the United States unless the submission of a question were approved by the Senate in the same way and with the same solemnity given to ratification of a treaty. "I realize this would take away some authority from the court, so far as the United States is concerned. "I don't want the United States in a foreign court if it is to have authority to determine questions against the United States on the complaint of some foreign nation. "I believe this reservation is necessary to protect the interests of the American people. "The significance of Norris' announcement lay in his tremendous influence on the Senate. Many of the new senators, though Democrats, promised during their campaigns to follow the Nebraska leadership on all major issues. If his reservation is rejected, and administration leaders now oppose it, it may well endanger final ratification of the court protocol.

If his duties permit, President Roosevelt will be a guest of the Fly Club, a Harvard social organization, of which he was a member in 1902 and 1903. If he attends, he will witness the election of his son, Franklin, Jr., into the club on February 22.

World Court Is Dead, Says Will Rogers

Reprinted from the New York Times of Jan. 17.
To the Editor of the New York Times:

Washington, Jan. 16.—Say, I flew in here away in the middle of last night with a female co-pilot. She is the only one in existence on a regular organized line, from Cleveland to Washington, and she was O.K.

Well, I get in here and what do you think I find this Senate arguing over? The World Court!

Now, I don't want to split the party, but the World Court is the dearest thing in this country outside of prohibition.

It's all right to fix the world, but you better get your own smokehouse full of meat first.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

OLD AGE PENSION PLAN IS RUSHED

PASSAGE POSSIBLE IN 30 DAYS

By International News Service

Washington, Jan. 18.—In the face of serious obstacles, the leaders today were hopeful of driving President Roosevelt's security program through Congress within 30 days.

Since Mr. Roosevelt warned that speed is essential to enable 44 legislatures to conform their laws to the program, early and probably brief hearings are planned.

The House ways and means committee hopes to begin hearings Monday while the Senate finance committee will open hearings on the measure Tuesday. This will keep the program almost continuously before both branches after the bill is reported to the House.

A drive of considerable proportions to liberalize the measure, particularly to raise the proposed $30 a month old age pensions to at least $50, confronted the leaders. Republican senators from the western states, where the gigantic $4 billion—$200 a month plan of Dr. Francis E. Townsend has taken hold, insist the program be liberalized.

The same sentiment is expressed by Senator Van Nuys (D.) of Indiana and other Democratic members. The leaders are confident, however, that the Democratic majority will go along with the President, who reminds Congress that the Treasury's ability to pay is limited.

A revolt opened in the House when Chairman Cawley (D.) of Massachusetts, of the labor committee, called his body into session to report out an old-age pension plan similar to that of the administration. The committee is fired because the President's bill was not referred to it.

BUSINESS VIEWS ASKED

ON U. S. PENSIONS

By International News Service

Washington, Jan. 18.—A few hours after President Roosevelt presented Congress his proposals for economic security which calls for considerable financial assistance from industry—the proposed three per cent payroll tax to finance unemployment insurance alone estimated to cost industry about $600,000,000 yearly—the White House invited business leaders to state their views on this and other legislative proposals.

This action was taken at a White House conference attended by Secretary of Commerce Roger A. L. Kennedy, of Boston, chairman of the business advisory planning council. Roger spoke at a dinner he gave members of the council.

He said any business man or organization having suggestions or complaints about any pending legislation will be heard by the administration.

Who, What and When of Old Age Pension Plan

Here is a primer explaining features of President Roosevelt's old-age pension and unemployment insurance plans:

Q—What will be the amount of the pension? A—At first not more than $30 a month. Later almost $50 a month.

Q—When will it start? A—Probably during late 1935.

Q—Who will get them? A—All who are 65 or older, unemployed and without the means to live in health and decency.

Q—If everybody in this class immediately applied? A—Everybody of this class is now agreeing to co-operate with the federal government in a temporary plan. Later there will be a compulsory national system administered without state aid.

Q—What must the states do? A—To get the federal pension grant they must match it dollar for dollar and must not deny a pension of more than $30 a month. In the meantime, to anyone 65 or older, who is without income, not an inmate of a public institution and has lived in the state for at least five of the last 10 years.

The federal government will allot $50,000,000 for the starting July 1, and $125,000,000 annually thereafter. There will be no immediate payment for the temporary co-operative plan, but there will be for the permanent federal plan.

Q—When will the federal permanent system start? A—The first pensions will probably start before 1937, but taxes will be collected for it beginning in 1937.

Q—Who will pay these taxes? A—The employer will be responsible for paying the taxes, but he will deduct one-half of the amount of the tax from the pay of his employee. The levy at the start in 1937 will be one per cent of each employer's payroll; in 1942 it will be increased to two per cent and in 1950 to five per cent.

Q—What about eligibility under the permanent system? A—An employee will be eligible for pension when he reaches 65 if taxes are paid.

ARREST of Karpis NEAR

LAST BREMER KIDNAPER

By Associated Press
Chicago, Jan. 18.—Federal agents worked at top speed today to put the finish to the Barker-Karpis kidnap gang, with the arrest of Alvin Karpis, new No. 1 public enemy and remaining "king pin" of the mob believed to be imminent.

Heavy reinforcements of agents had been sent into Florida for a concentration near Miami.

This disclosure, made at the instant into the death of Fred Barker and his mother, Kate, both of whom were slain earlier in the week by Federal agents at Oklawaha, Fla., came almost simultaneously with the announcement that Arthur (Doc) Barker, brother of the slain Fred, was held incommunicado in Chicago.

Though the Federal men aren't exactly saying so, it is the general belief that Arthur Barker broke down and "squeaked" the tip that led to the deaths of his mother and brother—Ma and Fred Barker.

Agents in Florida continued their quest for ransom money at the Oklawaha hideout. So far the agents have found $12,750.

LIBBY'S BABY FIGHTS BY LAWYER

By Associated Press
Winston Salem, N. C., Jan. 18.—Baby Christopher Smith Reynolds today replied to Mrs. Anna Cannon Reynolds Smith's challenge of his legitimacy and right to a part of the tobacco millions of his father, the late Smith Reynolds, with a scathing attack upon her good faith in raising the question.

Through his next friend, St. C. Vaughn, the infant son of Libby Libby, former Broadway torch singer and Reynolds' second wife, filed an answer Reynolds' lawyer, George Court, to Mrs. Smith's effort to bar him from sharing in the estimated $20,000,000 estate.

Mrs. Smith, Reynolds' first wife, died herself a wealthy fortune heiress, contends that her husband, now, divorces from Reynolds was illegitimate and therefore his subsequent marriage to Miss Holman was void and little Christopher had no rights of inheritance.

"SPY" CHIEF Loses Balm Suit

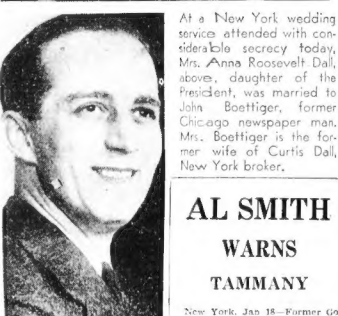

A jury in Middlesex Superior Court today awarded $1000 to John P. Edmonds, 38, of Shirley, in his $10,000 suit against former Police Chief Thomas C. Barrill of that town.

Edmonds charged that former Chief Barrill alienated the affection of Mrs. Caroline Edmonds, mother of four children, after Edmonds had hired the chief to spy on her.

Subsequently, Edmonds claimed it was necessary to hire two detectives to watch Barrill.

28 SAVED CAPTAIN DIES IN SHIPWRECK

By Associated Press

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 18.—Captain Duncan Milne, last man left aboard the stranded British freighter Kennerly as she broke up on Black Rock Point, was drowned today as he climbed into the breeches buoy that had carried 28 of his crew to safety.

The freighter, with 27 of her crew rescued, but with her captain and chief engineer still aboard, had split in half on the rocks of Black Point at Portuguese Cove earlier today.

Watchers on the shore waited in vain for the breeches buoy line for the captain and his chief engineer, J. Dove, to leave the ship.

Jarred by every smash of the breakers, the freighter split and waves carried the stern away.

But the line was still attached to her forecast. Chief Engineer Dove got ashore, while Captain Milne, true to the traditions of the sea, remained to the last—just a little too long.

Watchers on the shore, peering through a raging snowstorm, saw Captain Milne step out toward the breeches buoy.

He missed his footing, plunged forward into the sea and disappeared, swept out of sight in an instant.

The 2900-ton freighter was stranded about 100 yards from land. She ran aground only a few miles from Halifax, but it was hours before tugboats sent in response to an SOS could locate the ship.

MARRIED 30 MINUTES DIVORCE FAILS

By Universal Service

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18.—Thirty minutes after her wedding, Mrs. Henrietta Desmer Crough, 19, daughter of a New York jeweler, left John H. Crough, son of the police chief of Yonkers, N. Y., and the asked Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Circuit Court to annul the marriage. But the judge wouldn't.

One argument her attorney made for annulment was the duration that on the marriage day, January 6, 1934, young Crough lacked a month of being 21 years old. The ceremony was performed in the county courthouse in Chicago. The judge granted a continuance in January 31, when it is said a divorce will be asked on grounds of desertion.

CHILD TO RUN For Newton Mayor

Former Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton will again this year be a candidate for election, he announced today. He will be opposed by General Daniel Needham, former public safety commissioner; by Paul Harris Drake, realty man, and perhaps by Dr. T. Morton Gallagher, medical examiner, who has not definitely decided.

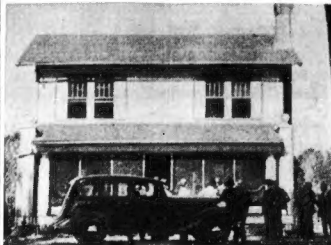

Childs, mayor for 16 years until 1930, will have the support of Thomas W. White, former collector of internal revenue. Mayor Sinclair Weeks, to retire, will support General Needham.

Where Barkers Died

U. S. Men Slay Mother, Son

One day, this was just a peaceful bungalow at Oklawaha, Fla., the winter home of a supposedly respectable northern business man and his mother. Next day, it was the center of a desperate four-hour machine gun battle which ended with the slaying of Mrs. Kate "Ma" Barker and her son, Fred Barker, alleged members of a "snatch" gang which kidnaped Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker. DAVIS REVEALED HOLDING 2 JOBS

pany, which went into bankruptcy in the Krueger-Toll debacle, "which maligned innocent American investors of $200,000,000." He continued: "I charged to the White House that Davis, to the best of my belief, is receiving $75,000 for representing these interests, and that he has been serving in the detriment of a responsible and important American industry at the same time he was representing President Roosevelt and the American people abroad."

Specious Theory

"Davis and his associates set up the specious theory that the American-owned investors in Krueger, Toll can regain some of their losses if the Swedish match trust is allowed to sell more of its product in the American market. The people who lost in that fiasco should seek relief in the American courts of law against the international bankers who prevailed upon them to risk their money in foreign investment."

"There can be no justification for any attempt to promote Swedish, Finnish and Japanese match manufacturers and slave wages, at the expense of a fine American industry in which $15,000,000 is invested and which employs 5,000 American men and women directly and at least 25,000 more indirectly."

"The Japanese wage is one-fourth ours per hour. We pay our men 35 cents an hour, our men 50 cents per hour. We are compelled to meet other costs imposed on us by NRA, high taxes and excise taxes. Under these conditions it is not to be wondered that foreign competitors can undercut us in the American market by 35 cents per gross. But the fact is that the American consumer gets no benefit from slave-wage-matches. He pays a penny a box, just the same."

"If Davis wants to be an American ambassador, let him be that. If he wants to be a paid agent for international bankers, let him be that. He should not be both at the same time, at the expense of American industry and American people."

State Department Denies Match Deal

By Universal Service
Washington, Jan. 18.—The State Department today issued a denial of published reports that Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, had sought to influence a reduction in the tariff on matches. The statement said: "There is not the slightest foundation in fact for the published statement that Norman Davis has made representations to the State Department concerning the American tariff on matches. Mr. Davis has not discussed any phase of the proposed Swedish trade agreement or any other trade agreement with the Secretary of State or any other official or officials of the State Department.

"The fact may be recalled that a year ago on January 4, 1934, Mr. Davis gave to the press a public statement detailing the essential phases of his proposed activities, during the period when he was on leave of absence from the government service, and of course, drawing no government salary."

"The State Department also gave out the text of Davis' statement of January 6, 1934, in which he said he had received and after a conference with President Roosevelt, had accepted an invitation to be the American member of an international committee representing investors in debentures of the Krueger Match Company to work out reorganization of those concerns."

KING'S "NEPHEW"

Sent to Jail

By Universal Service

London, Jan. 18.—Clarence Haddon, the man who would be a king's nephew, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment on charges of menacing King George.

Haddon claims he is the illegitimate son of the Duke of Clarence, elder brother of King George, whose death during the reign of Edward VII made King George heir to the throne.

Science against Haddon was suspended some time ago on condition he would no longer attempt to annoy the king. He was rearrested when he demanded documents relating to his alleged claim.

Two leaders of the young social set, Mrs. Howland S. Warren (Fanny Homans) and Miss Rachael Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Warner of Beacon Hill, are among the members of the Junior League busily engaged in raising funds for the Emergency Campaign.

SCHOOL Flag Pledge SOUGHT

BILL FILED ON "ALLEGIANCE"

A bill to require display of the United States flag in every school classroom, and a daily pledge of allegiance to the flag by pupils and teachers, was filed in the Legislature today.

It was petitioned for by William Day Moore of Milford, president of the Massachusetts Elks Association. It was signed in filing by four representatives: General Frederick E. Pierce of Greenfield, Spanish War veteran; Daniel J. Honan of Wintthrop, Burt Dewar of Malden and Ignatius B. Cleary of Auburn.

The purpose of the bill is "to promote good citizenship." It states, "Under its provision, Section 89 of Chapter 71 of the general laws would be amended."

This chapter now provides that each school shall have a flag not less than four feet in length, which shall be displayed on the school grounds on fair days and inside the building in stormy weather; and that failure to observe the law for five consecutive days is punishable by a $5 fine assessed either to principal, teacher or school committee.

New Pledge

The amendment proposed reads: "The school committee shall also provide for and display in each class and assembly room in each schoolhouse, a United States flag of silk or bunting not less than four feet in length."

Pupils under direction of the teachers recite at the opening exercises on each school day, recite in unison. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

X-9 Club Birthday On Air

By a fine bit of sleuthing, the Big Chief of the Secret Agent X-9 Club discovered that next Tuesday is the first anniversary of the club—and, therefore, there will be a big radio party on that night.

Approximately 100,000 boys and girls in New England and in places as far-flung as China have joined the organization.

The Big Chief has made arrangements whereby all who members may join in the party merely by sitting beside your radios between 8:30 and 9 p. m. next Tuesday and listening to the celebration festivities coming in over Station WAAZ.

There will be a number of X-9 members taking part in the entertainment program over the air, not the least of which will be Billy McVann, seven, of Roxbury, and his little brother, Paul, who is only four, child prodigies of Roxbury.

Betty Alden on 'Beacon Hill'

Nancy Faxon and Mother
Visit New York

By BETTY ALDEN

POSTCARDS DEPICTING bright exotic gardens and sunny patios and revealing life in a warm country, where sleek and sleek are only a myth, are finding their way into the mailboxes of Lee and Marian McKean. They are from their grandmother, Mrs. George Lee of Chestnut street, who is basking in the balmy climate of Mexico.

Another Bostonian who is causing unrest in the hearts of her friends who are braving the season at home is Mrs. Chester W. Ladd of Walthamville. . . Her glowing accounts of the pleasant existence she is enjoying in Mexico make them shiver anew in contemplation of Boston's wintry weather. . .

Honeymooning in Florida

A FLORIDA HONEYMOON is being enjoyed by the youthful Eugene du Pont, 24 and his bride, the former Peggy Chapman, who recently astonished their families and friends by announcing their elopement of last September. . . They will live in Wilmington, Delaware, with long summer seasons at Bar Harbor where they have spent long seasons with their families heretofore.

Meanwhile, the weeks roll on . . . as weeks will, and rustlings of the affairs of society, even in the absence of any really impressive social functions, continue to disclose interesting news of the doings on Beacon Hill.

Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 24, has moved in town from her Boulder Farm in Newton Center to join the City Dwellers and is occupying her apartment at 81 Chestnut street, for the winter season. . .

Also living in cosier quarters for the winter are Mrs. Robert Homans and her daughter, Helen, who have closed their larger home on Chestnut street and are ensconced in a small apartment on Brimmer street. . . Since the wedding of Howland Shaw Warren, in the historic Adams House in Quincy last June, she and her bridegroom have been living on Linnean street, Cambridge. . .

There is great rejoicing in the household of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Thacher, Jr., of Pineck street over the birth of a son. . . This is their fourth child but the event is cause for particular delight as the infant is the only boy in the family. . .

Interested in Play Next Month

MRS. RICHARD PARSONS of Hingham is one of the many prominent social leaders of that community who is taking an active interest in the dramatic production of "They All Lived Again," a play written by Foster Turner and Edith Rich. . . The event is scheduled for an evening in the middle of February but as yet the plans for the occasion are unsettled except for the fact that it will be in Loring Hall, Hingham, and a long and prominent list of patronesses will sponsor the presentation. . . Nancy Faxon and her mother, Mrs. Huntington P. Faxon are going over to New York for a week, beginning January 24, to visit relatives. . . Nancy has been studying voice for two years and during the past week has been given an audition on one of the local radio stations. . . The appealing quality of Nancy's voice and her sweet manner might win her a job away from her sister dearest, all her Harvard beaux. . .

She may be in New York at the time of the Beaux Arts Ball, at the Waldorf Astoria on February 1. . . Elaborate preparations are being made by the committee for this event, which will be a most magnificent spectacle with about 500 socialites taking part in the pageant depicting the extravagant and luxurious entertainments given by the Prince Regent, son of George III, at Carlton House in London. . . "George III Regrets" is the title of the ball, the sixteenth of a series given by the architects' emergency fund, and always arranged for by a large committee, including a group of Bostonians. . .

Bostonians Serve on Ball Committee

EDWIN S. DODGE of Chestnut street, Ralph W. Gray of Mt. Vernon street, Hubert Ripley of West Newton and Henry Shepley, all prominent Boston architects, are serving on the committee. . . From their reports the ball will be livelier and more amusing than ever this year. . .

Jade green and primrose yellow have been chosen as the dominant colors for the decorations. . . thousands of yards of green and yellow material will radiate from a central focal point, an electrically lighted green crown, hung from the ceiling. . . Huge rosettes of green with pompons of yellow will decorate the boxes. . .

For the first time in the history of the Beaux Arts Ball the architects have turned pro-British and the guests must attend in costume of the period of George III. . . This is presenting a serious problem to society folk who are planning their costumes for this one ball of the year which everybody attends if they possibly can. . . some to be seen and others just for the fun of having a grand evening. . .

William J. Neary of Worthington street, Springfield, foreman of the jury which found Kaminski guilty of murder in the first degree, said that he was glad of the reprieve. He said: "Life imprisonment is enough."

FAMOUS FLIERS SAY

"get a Lift with a Camel!"

● From dawn to dusk—from Newark Airport to Miami and return in 15 hours and 16 minutes! That's the record held by Chief Pilot E. H. Parker, of the Eastern Air Lines. But let him tell you about transport flying and how Camels help him through the strain. In his own words: "The steady grind of transport flying takes stamina—vitality—nerves that never wear. Passengers... mail... express must arrive on time, and it's the pilot's duty to see that they do! There are plenty of times when I get tired. Then I smoke a Camel. For I have always noticed that Camels help a lot in easing the strain and renewing my 'pep.' I can go on with more alertness and vigor. I smoke Camels a lot. They taste so good, and never affect my nerves."

SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD SMITH, famous flier who holds the record from Australia to California—7200 miles in 51 hours—says: "Once you've had a real chance to appreciate the mild, mellow flavor of Camels, you'll never stop smoking them. I always want a Camel—anytime, anywhere. I'm fatigued. They refresh me so. Camels are my 'supercharger'—they lift up my vim—give me new energy and 'go.' And they are so mild that I can smoke any number of Camels without throwing my nerves off kilter."

by ROBERT E. ROGERS

And now Dr. W. D. Madden, a Boston physician, sets me right on a complex point of identification raised in the column about "She" of a few days ago. I suspect that this is going to be a serial.

"The Grand Dame Museum and the Grand Opera House are (or were) two distinct theaters. The Grand Dame Museum was located directly at the corner of Dover and Washington streets, and the Grand Opera House was located about 25 or 30 feet from the corner of Dover and Washington."

I am really obliged and I hope that now we have it right for the record. I will not apologize for never having heard of the Grand Dame Museum.

My patronage of such institutions was limited to one visit to old Austin and Stone's in Scollay square—where the small must have been much the same as in the South End place of entertainment.

But did the Grand Dame ever boast of anybody corresponding to the grand old man of Austin and Stone's—the venerable Professor Hutchins, with his flowing white locks, his ceremonial frock coat and the pointer with which he indicated the object of his half hourly lecture?

Instead of making assertions any more, let me ask questions. This will give well intentioned and better informed veterans of Greater Boston an opportunity to set me on the right path without appearing to correct me.

"For instance, how late did the panorama of the Battle of Gettysburg in Warren avenue, near Berkeley street survive the changes of the modern world? I have heard that it was shown for a long time, it seems of three dimensional actuality. When did it vanish from the scene?"

Were There Any Works?

Again, whether in Boston in those good days of basque and burles, the silk petticoat, the trailing skirt and the raven slave, anything corresponding to the Eden Mews in New York? Were there works in Boston, in the manner of Mrs. Jarley, who employed Little Nell?

AUSTIN AND STONE

Could one behold on public exhibition the most celebrated case in our annals?

Or of Lizzie Borden with her halibut, slopping over the bodies of her father and stepmother in that quiet Fall River home. I crave to know. I do not remember ever hearing of them.

Better wander than dream in the past than get all excited about Mr. Sean O'Casey and that curious play of his which half the audience does not understand and the rest resent.

Mr. O'Casey does not make it easy for even his well wishers to discuss his work as public entertainment. He is not happy in his defenders.

The young Harvard instructor who claims the play as the greatest of the present day and O'Casey as the greatest English-speaking dramatist since Shakespeare, protests too much, methinks.

Surprised at Bishop

The amateur performance last spring in Cambridge, did not, as I remember, set the Charles on fire. One heard nothing about Shakespeare then.

I wish that the Methodist ministers' meeting under Bishop Burns had not voted to exclude the play from Boston without, apparently, any member of the meeting having seen it or read it, merely on a third-hand report by an outsider.

I am a little surprised that Bishop Burns acquiesced to so stupid and unintelligent an action.

The position of the Catholic church, as expressed in the careful statement by Father Connolly, was precisely what might have been expected, according to the church's teaching on art and morals.

Furthermore, the Catholics had taken pains to inform themselves very precisely on the subject.

But the Methodists, who like to vaunt their liberalism, exposed themselves to censure for ignorance and selfishness in this matter.

It is the business of individuals or groups who wish to enroll to know rather more about the matter in hand than other people. Obviously the Methodists did not.

As usual, the censorious interests have chosen a play which is contrary to the general, which the great majority of Boston audiences would neither understand nor patronize, once they found out what it is all about, a play the influence of which on the public would have been nil.

Maximilian the burlesque figure without interference. Even as it was when Johnny Pils kept "The Eastern Way" out of Boston. The more it changes, the more it is the same thing.

Nurse Better

The possibility that the four hour operation on the brain of Miss Julia Ford, 46, nurse, of Bowdoin street, Dorchester, at City Hospital, may have saved her life was expressed by attendants at the hospital. She sustained her injuries in the Copple square car crash.

Purse in Snow

Nathan Greenbaum of New York, who says he has a key to the vaults of the Boston Police Department, has dropped his wallet containing a substantial sum of money in the heavy snows blanketed the route he took home.

OOMPHATYRE NEW YORK Day By Day

New York, Jan. 18.—Thoughts while strolling: Jimmy Savo and Cole Porter have the same eyes. Another name jitters: Tay Hohoff. Burton Rascoe still looks collegiate.

They say one of Peter Arno's show backers didn't. And he has to dig up $65,000. No wonder he looks so glum.

Newest wonder boy: Herb Roth can pass those pink mirrors without a glance. Jules Roche is a quick, short stepper and Miss Staur is a singer for Citroen, France's Henry Ford.

They could terrorize a beauty show from any department store show counter. Why not an Lily Club?

GIRL'S Story of KIDNAP

"DICK" SOUGHT BY POLICE

With only the name "Dick" and the first three numbers of a license plate on which to work, Brookline police today were investigating a story by Miss Maida Putnam, Malden dramatic coach, that she was kidnapped in a car at Boylston and Cypress streets, Brookline.

To the Boston Evening American Miss Putnam gave her version of the kidnapping which ended, she said, with her two abductors robbing her of 65 cents and throwing her out of the car into a North Reading snowbank.

"I had been to the Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters in Brookline, where I had directed the dress rehearsal of a play," she said. "Afterward I had a headache and Mr. Thomas F. Ford, Jr., volunteered to escort me to a drugstore at Boylston and Cypress streets."

"I took some medicine and we came out. A few feet distant from the drugstore I heard someone call out, 'Miss Putnam, Miss Putnam!' I saw a car and thought the person calling was one of the men from the club, seeking information about the play."

Pulled Inside

"Naturally my escort did not approach the car with me. As I stepped up to the car, the rear door opened and a man grabbed me and pulled me inside."

"I screamed once, but the man quickly covered my face. 'Come on, Dick, let's out of this town quick!'"

"As the machine started up, the man behind me said, 'Come on, Dick, let's out of this town quick!'"

"Shortly after I was in the car, the driver said, 'Where's the door you were talking about?'"

"I could not answer him because I was being blind."

"All during the ride, they kept fighting with me and finally the driver said, 'Let's get rid of her. Throw her out!'"

"The car stopped and they pushed me out of the machine into a snow bank."

'El' System Paralyzed As Power Fails

Nearly the entire Boston Elevated system was paralyzed by a power breakdown for 15 to 25 minutes today.

The power failed at 7:47 this morning at the height of the rush period.

For a quarter-hour not a single wheel moved on any lines in Boston and the suburbs except south-bound on the Everett-Forest Hills line.

All Cambridge-Dorchester tunnel trains and north-bound trains in the Washington street subway were plunged into darkness and their passengers frightened.

Thousands were in confusion at the main transfer points such as Everett station, Sullivan square, Harvard square, Dudley street, Forest Hills, Andrew square, Forest Hills, and Ashmont.

The trip was one of the worst in city transportation since the car strike in 1915.

Its cause, according to El officials, was a defective die in one of the big turbines at the South Boston power plant.

Surface lines, subway, tunnels and overhead—almost every rail used by the system in Boston, Boston, Somerville, Cambridge, Medford, Everett, Malden, Arlington, Brighton, Brookline, Allston, Dorchester—went out of order.

Conditions were at their worst in the subway and the Cambridge and East Boston tunnels. Cars and trains were stalled underground between stations and in darkness.

Of all the line's facilities, only the buses moved and only bus passengers were not delayed.

Repairs were effected in 15 minutes in the subway and tunnels but on some of the suburban surface lines, service was not restored for 25 minutes.

That was the maximum delay.

POLICE GOLD BRAID HIT

SHAKEUP ASKED IN EVERETT

Too much gold braid and not enough "pavement pounders" in the Everett police department, City Councilman Francis P. Byrne today gives as his reason for efforts to stop new appointments of officers.

BRYNE WANTS 'POLICEMEN, NOT OFFICERS'

He asks Mayor James A. Roche to appoint new patrolmen.

He said he would file an order next Monday seeking a revision of the present city ordinance governing police promotions.

It was said it is a common belief that the appointments of a captain, lieutenant or sergeant are made on the basis of seniority.

For the near future, Mr. Byrne would like to see officers to one chief, one captain, six lieutenants, six sergeants and 65 privates.

The police department, insofar as patrolmen are concerned, is inadequate. There are not enough privates and altogether too many lieutenants.

There are not enough lieutenants on the force at the present time, four too many.

"Instead of gold braid" we need at least ten additional patrolmen and an additional patrol car to combat the present crime wave."

"These robberies seem to be contagious in our city. Less than a week ago we had six break-ins in one night. Our night force is badly crippled. Night after night one police officer is compelled to cover as many as three routes."

Councilman Byrne pointed out that one drug store in the Woodlawn section of the city had been held up three times in the last year.

HOLLAND 'IOLANTHE' Becomes Complete Joy

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Merrie Old England's only existing company of Gilbert and Sullivan players, the D'Oyly Carte Company, pleased Boston again last night.

Their "Iolanthe" at the Colonial was the second in a series of presentations which will take in all the famous operas written by the noted team.

"Iolanthe" is a fairy story with music and lyrics by W. S. Gilbert and music by Arthur Sullivan. It is a comedy in which a fairy, Iolanthe, who is a spirit of the air, falls in love with a mortal, Sir Robin.

George Holland

Given the fact that the D'Oyly Carte Company has been playing "Iolanthe" for over 25 years, it is not surprising that it has become a complete joy to the audience.

While the show makes its last night, it is a joy to see the company perform.

It was a very beautiful performance, and the audience was very much pleased.

"Blown Sky-High"

HELLO, EVERYBODY.

Number 12 hole was filled and packed. The gang moved on to the next one. The chart called for 5000 pounds of jelled destruction. It was hole Number 13.

He had time to realize what had happened. He doesn't know how long this day. And he knew, also, that when he hit the earth after that wild ride—when the tons of stone and timbers fell with him—his prob-arbial, one accident with dynamite would be over.

Voices from far off—coming nearer. White heard a bellowing order: "Get those men out of here before those other twelve holes cut loose, or Hell will be popping."

A black and white illustration showing a large explosion of dynamite. Several workers in hard hats and work clothes are standing around the explosion. In the background, there is a building and a train. A large sign on the right side of the illustration reads "58 THOUSAND POUNDS OF DYNAMITE". The signature "Mor." is visible in the bottom right corner.

Well, now that we've got Wallace White down out of the air, let's dive into that mountain of the current week's mail and see which one of your yarns will come up. Boy, oh boy, I'll never let anybody tell me I was wrong about adventure coming out of every-day life. It's here in sales and bundles. And take this week-end off and write about that time you were right on the edge of the Big Beyond. And go the yarn in before the club meeting Monday. Tomorrow, look for "Claws of the Silver Shadow."

You had a glorious vacation last summer, heard a goodly number of fine and interesting lectures, and came home happy and satisfied.

You got a fine fan, plenty of fresh air, you were cooled and made you tingle with pep and energy, but there is one thing that you don't remember.

Of all the helpful suggestions you were given, the only one that you don't remember is the lecture, you cannot remember a single thing.

You enjoyed much, but you did not get any of it.

Do you call that being interested?

You say, it is merely that you do not recall their words.

What about their ideas? Could you express some of the things that they said? Do they have had no effect upon your present or future life?

What about the few notes for future reference?

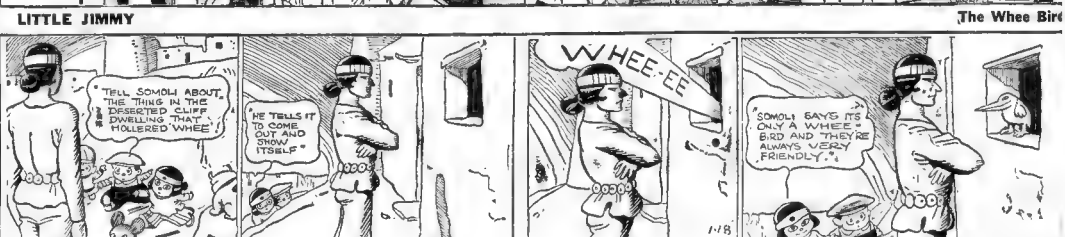

You hear others talk very interestingly to the very men and women that you hear the lectures, that you remember what you recognized what they had said, and you wonder how they have brought to mind the thoughts your friends remember.

Danno's Lilt, Left-Over Race Profits

PERHAPS IT IS BECAUSE he springs from a race famed for its ancient minstrelsy that Dan O'Mahoney, the Irish lad who lately joined Paul Bowser's chapter of human pranks, speaks with the lilt of the Kerry pipes, a treble, bird-like quality that trails upward like an unfinished song.

Thus, this morning, when Rudy Dusek, the waffle eared offshoot of Omaha dirt farmers, met Danno for the first time socially, the two chatted quietly in a corner of Bowser's office.

There was the flat, guttural drone of Rudy's rural-bred voice and the upbitt chirp of the Irish boy, with awkward silence in between.

A radiator sputtered. Papa Paul bent furry brows over his ledgers, editing income and outgo.

Suddenly conscious of a presence, Papa Paul lifted his head. Rudy, with an exasperated pucker on his grizzled puss, was bending close to his ear.

"Say," whispered Rudy hoarsely, "don't that guy talk English?"

Unclaimed Race Winnings

YOU WOULDN'T THINK IT possible that horse-track addicts with winning stunts would go away without their profits. Yet Narragansett's race plant holds $20,000 in unclaimed bets, money which has laid in its vaults waiting for coupon holders to call for their winnings.

Now and again stragglers mail in tickets, some of which are six months old and worth substantial sums, asking, please, to have them cashed. The track auditor checks through his race files, swearing softly the while, determines whether the stubs tally with the figures, and pays off.

Sometimes a claimant has lost his stubs, but the track pays just the same. Such claims come in the form of notary's affidavits, stating that Mr. Mokus, the big ginger-ale agent, mislaid his stubs on a horse named Gollywobble in the seventh race of July 6, amounting to $37.70.

This time the auditor swears out loud, checks not only the facts but the character of the claimant as well. If the figures fit and the man has a sound moral reputation, he forwards the amount.

Now, the curious aspect of this, is, why do holders of winning tickets delay collecting their profits?

Perhaps accidental loss, oversight, destruction, sudden illness and 100 other reasons. An elderly gent with the heart flutters buys a horse check, perches in the stands and, as his money-amant churns up the backstretch, feels his pulse skip.

He swoons and is trundled off to the little frame building where a nurse waits for just such emergencies.

Time passes. The elderly gent recovers, thankful to be snatched from the jaws of death. Then one day he slides through an old vest. Hello, here are a couple of horse stubs. Wonder if that brute won?

Much of this orphaned $20,000 will never be claimed. By law it stays in the Narragansett vaults for six years, then passes to the state.

Decision; U. S. L. T. A. Style

IN THE SIGHT OF THAT thunderous body, the U. S. tennis fathers, two British stars, Fred Perry and Bunny Austin, are tarred with the brush of professionalism. Perry and Austin have just finished some tennis films in Hollywood, thus violating amateur tennis law.

The British have asked, kindly, to have their slimmers made pure again by special ruling, wishing to recover them in time for the big tournament season. But the U. S. fathers growl now, any player who exploits his fame for pecuniary gain is guilty of professionalism alike in flesh and spirit. Scish.

This exudes the musty odor of hypocrisy. It was not long ago that gangling Bill Tilden flouted the U. S. tennis rule against literary athletes, who reaped lovely dividends from scribbling trips for new syndicates.

Tilden pouted, sulked, scolded and continued to tap out his wisdom for "pecuniary profit."

Well, it stomped the tennis daddies for a while. But only for a while. To soothe Big Bill and keep him in tournament circulation they limited him, and other stars, to tennis essays about matches in which they did not take personal part.

This proved satisfactory to the stars, who obviously could not box typewriter keys while galloping hot-blocks around a grass court.

That day was saved, but this is another day.

Seeing the World Through Babe's Eyes

TRAVEL NOTE—THE BABE RUTHES, papa and mama, are in St. Moritz, high in the Swiss Alps, for the winter sports. The Babes are seeing life in winter, papa calls "the raw," having skirted the globe from Japan by way of Bali and Java.

Papa's opinion of Bali ladies, who are not-brown-maidens, but as Kipling says, white and brown much before and rather less than "arf o' that behind," was that they "are too cheery and too black." Ma was listening!

Ma said, for publication, that Pa would write a book himself this year, and when Pa said he would have the time, Ma said she would find Pa the time.

He'll Write

Babe Ruth will turn literary this year, says the missus. And her word goes.

THE National League baseball lords gathered to choose a successor to John A. Heydler, it was Judge Emil Fuchs of the Braves who rose and solemnly proposed the name of a young man, who, he said, "possesses all the tact, fearlessness and enterprise to make him the right man for the job."

The league lords nodded their golly konks, and young Mr. Fitch was voted into the presidency.

Today, a few more in the same. The league lords are gathered again. And once more Judge Fuchs holds the floor.

Only this time he has created a crisis that will try the strength of the young man whose tact, courage and enterprise he endorsed, thus being at once Fitch's first sponsor and first antagonist.

Two Groups Seek to Buy Braves

Mack O. K.

PROSPECTIVE BUYERS WANT RUTH

New York, Jan. 18.—New ownership of the Boston club appeared certain as the National League magnates went into special session here today to discuss the muddled state of baseball affairs in the Bay State metropolis, where the racing greyhounds threaten to tear up the diamond at Braves Field.

Two groups, one in Boston and the other in New York, are interested in taking over the holdings of Judge Emil Fuchs and Charles F. Adams in the Tribal franchise. It was revealed by Ford Frick, youthful president of the circuit, who went into the executive huddle wearing his first smile in a week.

"The skies are clearing," chirped the "prexy." "I can't promise names or go into details, but two groups of respectable citizens are looking to take over the Braves. I don't think it will take up long to straighten to the tang." Fuchs and Adams refused to break their long silence to comment on the latest angle to the case.

ADAMS KEY

The other club owners were taking it for granted, though, that both Boston magnates would be more than willing to sell out and agreed that new management would be the logical solution of all concerned.

It was also felt that the club could return to Braves Field under this plan. It is understood that Adams, who in vice-president of the club, is also head of the holding corporation of the team, and it is believed he would agree to rent it to a new owner who would give him back the money he has invested in the tribe.

While no hint was given as to the identity of any of those interested in buying the Boston club, it is being given that Babe Ruth is the choice of both groups to succeed Bill McKechnie as manager.

OUR WILL

And these close to inner Red Sox circles insist that McKechnie is held in such high regard at the Fens that unless the new owners took good care of Wilkesburg Wall, they stand a very slim chance of getting the Bambino.

But these matters are of no concern to the National League fathers today. All they're interested in is making sure that the Braves will play in Boston this coming season.

Olin Bout Off

SORE TOOTH STOPS GO WITH LEWIS

New York, Jan. 18.—Jimmy Johnson, dapper boxing promoter of Madison Square Garden, struck another snag today when he omitted non-title, 12-round non-bout between Bob Olin and John Henry Lewis, Arizona Negro, was postponed indefinitely.

An infected tooth in Olin's jaw was the cause. Dr. William Walker, New York Athletic Commission physician, examined Olin and pronounced him in no condition to fight.

Officials cancelled the supporting card, and the Garden will be dark tonight.

GRID LEADER

Storrs, Conn., Jan. 18.—Reuben R. Johnson New Haven, a junior at Connecticut State College, has been appointed captain of the 1935 eleven by head coach J. Orlean Christian. He succeeds Michael E. Cronin, '34, of Westbury, N. Y. Johnson is a half back.

AND GULLS WERE BARRED! MORENZ OUT ON LOAN

By Bill Grimes

Now comes the enlightening information that although the A. A. U. refused to issue cards to the Crescent-Hamilton six, comprised for the most part of Canadian amateurs, so called, it is sanctioning the Brooklyn outfit's participation against registered amateur clubs.

A year ago, the A. A. U. ruled that no Canadian players would be eligible to compete for the United States championship. . . It was for that reason the Atlantic City Six Gulls were barred. . . Owner-Thomas of the Sea Gulls did all within his power to live up to the A. A. U. requirements. . . He obtained the necessary positions for his players in the various Atlantic City hotels, but the governing body refused to allow his team to play off for the championship.

Johnny Gannon dropped into the Cubs dressing room to bid good-bye to his pals before he left for Montreal. . . "Good luck to you Johnny," said the Cubs. To which the Black Cat replied in his best broken English, "The same to me." Tiny Thompson, the popular Bruin goalie, declared that Howie Morenz is playing his best hockey in two or three years.

According to a dispatch from Toronto, Howie Morenz and Lorne Chabot were not sold to the Chicago Blackhaws by Lee Cunniff, but are only on loan to Major Frederic McLaughlin.

Danno Even Bet To Throw Rudy

"Irish Whip" Will Snap Again at Garden

By Jack Conway

Dan O'Mahoney, heavy-weight champion of Ireland, is an even money betting proposition to win over the fiery Rudy Dusek in their finish mat battle, best two falls out of three, at a Paul Bowser show at the Garden tonight.

O'Mahoney is battling to reach the wrestling height. If he is successful in adding the rugged Dusek to his list of victims, he will be in a position to force Jim Browning, Jim London and Ed Don (George) to give him serious consideration.

The 22-year-old sensation is today the most talked of athlete in New England. He has been teasing his sparring partners with the same vim he has displayed in cracking Harvard weight throwing records.

Dan, trained in the European style of grappling which permits holds only above the waist, has mastered the American loose style of grappling very quickly.

He promises to be a revelation tonight when he cues close with some new holds which are a combination of European and American grips.

O'Mahoney, of course, will make his big play with his famous "Irish Whip." This is the hold that enabled him to down Eddie Dusek. He says it will also give him a victory over Rudy.

Rudy is the toughest member of the Dusek family. He says he can win his brothers, Ernie, Emil and John, but he will not.

Ernie will oppose Leo Numa in a supporting bout tonight, and later second, Rudy. O'Mahoney won from Ernie at the Garden two months ago. Dan's second ago prepared in the event Ernie tries to pull any rough stuff tonight.

First bout at 8:15. Main event at 10 p. m.

Hialeah Lures Bostonians

By Jack Conway

THOUSANDS of Boston and New England persons will attend the races at the Hialeah meeting which opened at Miami, Fla. yesterday.

Hialeah is the class track of the South. It is owned by Joe Widener, and its winter meetings attract the entries of the best thoroughbred race horses in America.

Rhodeson H. Fairbanks and Walter O'Hara own the two largest New England racing stables which will be seen in action at Hialeah. Both the Fairbanks and O'Hara stables have been particularly successful during the past year.

Hialeah is the last word in race track construction, both as far as the track itself is concerned, and also from the viewpoint of comfort for the spectators.

The spacious clubhouse, surrounded by palm trees, is one of the show places of America. You can sit out on the balcony of the clubhouse and sip champagne as the warm Florida sun beats down upon you.

If you are fortunate, you may even see a horse on which you have a ticket come racing down the home stretch in the lead. Such things have happened.

Dave Wilson, famous handicapper of the Boston Evening American is at Hialeah. He will be there throughout the meeting, and will give his daily selections as well as the latest news on racing.

BOXERS ACTIVE
NOW THAT the boxing game is once more beginning to boom throughout the country, promoters are coming to New England for their attractions.

Benny Fuller of the North End will receive the most important opportunity of his colorful racing career when he clashes with Lou Ambrose in a 12-round bout in New York Garden on March 1.

If Fuller beats Ambrose, he probably will be hailed as lightweight champion. I don't think Barney Ross will even defend his lightweight title. He has outgrown this place, and cannot make 125 pounds.

Fuller is rated as No. 1 challenger by the Illinois Athletic Commission. He will receive a similar rating in New York if he wins tonight.

Then in the event Ross vacates his title Fuller can step right to the throne.

Johnny Buckley will move to the Coast with his stable of boxers on Monday. He has Lou Brouillard.

TONY SHUCCO
battling Oscar Rankin in Los Angeles on January 28. Andy Calahan and Honey Adkins will be the first class opponents on the same card.

Brouillard will return East in time to battle Paul Petta at Philadelphia on February 11, and Frank Battaglia in Pittsburgh on February 20.

Brouillard, Calahan, Melindy and Buckley will fly to the Coast, weather permitting. The hop is made in 21 hours.

RANDOM SHOTS
PAUL BOWEN looks for a sale of $15,000 at the O'Mahoney-Duane wrestling bout at the Garden tonight. . . . O'Mahoney is the best man attraction since Joe Bonaventura came roaring to the front.

. . . Jack Curley is trying to sign Ed Don George and Jim London for a New York title. . . . Alamo, Texas race track, is operating in the red. . . . Every track race isn't a gold mine. . . . Epomee, boxer at Houston, Texas made a profit of only $40,000 at its recent meeting.

. . . Santa Anita, Cal. hasn't had the mutual handle expected. . . . I agree with Neal O'Hara, who declared in one of his recent radio broadcasts that Rockingham Park and Narragansett Park are racing and mutual marks which will not be equaled for other tracks for a long time. . . . Neal also quoted our friend Babe Ruth in one of his interesting radio talks. . . . I believe baseball should do something big for Ruth. . . . The King of Swat said baseball following the black box scandal.

Work on Suffolk Downs will commence the first week in January. . . . The track will be ready ten weeks from the time the money goes to work. . . . Dan Carroll and Tony Shucco will be the main attraction. . . . Tomorrow will see Tony Knight there next Thursday night. . . . Mrs. Carroll will make the trip South. . . . Sam Cohen will hop off for Florida on Saturday.

CUBS RUN OVER EAGLES AT ARENA

By Bill Grimes
While the Bruins were watching the Cubs humiliate the New Haven Eagles 5 to 1 at the Arena, Blackhawks were beating the St. Louis Eagles in the Mound City. As a result, the Boston and Chicago clubs are now only one point apart.

Worn out by their flying trip to New York and Boston and back home, the mid-West Eagles were no match for the Hawks, losing 5 to 1, and to further complicate matters they hopped right on a train after the game and headed for Toronto.

Le Canadiennes came through with a fine victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in Montreal, turning back the Canadian division champions, 4 to 3.

Through their victory the Frenchmen picked up a point on the third place Americans, who played their third game of the season with Detroit Red Wings.

Bruins and Canadiens clash to-morrow night at the Boston Garden, and the Frenchmen will offer a star brand of opposition there on their previous trip.

Although no announcement has been forthcoming, there is another change in the Bruins' lineup in this offering.

It is believed that Jean Pusie will be promoted to the varsity. If the colorful Frenchman does not receive the call, Jack Portland or Bob McCully will.

UP SHE GOES
Pusie has possibilities but he needs schooling in the defense of body checking and covering in front of the net. He is a fine puck carrier and his passes accurately and has a bullet shot.

Pusie played the best brand of hockey he has shown at the arena. McCully is being used at right wing and his natural position is in the defense.

He is big, strong and rugged, and capable of standing up under punishment with the next one. Portland has been working regularly since he joined the Cubs, and he is showing marked improvement.

"Shono" May Go West; Earle Combs on Spot

By Joe Cashman
John "Shono" Collins, who's been out of baseball since resigning as Red Sox manager in mid-season of 1932, may return to the game this season as pilot of the Des Moines club of the Western League.

"Shono" was in Des Moines back in 1928 and 1929 and had the team in the thick of the pennant race both years. He also found Bill "Smell" and developed Pat Malone out there.

Pitcher Johnny Allen and Russ Van Atta, outfielders Earle Combs and Duke Walker and Catcher Bill Dieck of the Yankees must go South and prove they're sufficiently recovered from 1932 injuries before they'll be tendered formal contracts, according to Business Manager Ed Barrow.

Rube Ruth will also be held by only a tentative contract until he makes known his future plans.

New York fans are bound to expect strenuous if Combs is dropped because he is unable to play regularly. After more than a decade of brilliant play, Earl at most gave his life for the club last summer when he ran into the fence in St. Louis and suffered a fractured skull. It would indeed be shabby treatment if the rich Yankees were to drop such a conscientious performer without at least another year's salary.

TRIES HAND AT HUBBY'S GAME

HUSKIES HAVE YET TO WIN GAME

Northwestern's outlacked hockey forces attempt for the fourth time this season to crash into the winning column tonight.

Decried by one goal in each of their two exciting games with Boston College and once by Brown, the Huskies again take up the cudgel against the Bruins at the Boston Arena.

Jackson Killings is Coach Tom Taylor's goalie. He hails from Newtonville. Captain Bob Chapin, left, is from Newtonville. But, a former all-scholarship star in the local league, plays defense. Joe Kerins of Medford is the Bruins' center.

Phil Combs to Hurdle in Y Meet

One of the nine heel-and-toe steppers will win his first walking championship tomorrow night in the 1000 meters junior walk, the only New England A. A. U. title to be determined at the 1933 annual games in the Boston Y. M. C. memorial gym.

West End House has sent in six of the entries: B. Silverstein, M. Romano, R. Venezia, A. Glasser, R. Pagnola and F. Ferrara.

"C" is fighting heavily on Dick DuWors. His teammates, J. C. Steinberg, and G. D. Jamieson complete the list.

Phil Good, who won the 45-meter hurdles in the "C" games last year, is coming with the Bowdoin College team. He will compete in the 45-yard high hurdles against such lumber chasers as Ray McLaughlin of the B. A. A. Alex. Reiffel, holder of the national Y. M. C. A. record in that event; and J. S. McCarthy, Northeastern's barrier hurdler, who placed in the heats last year.

Boston College has entered T. McFarland and E. Kirkham, and Northeastern has entered R. D. Warren, V. H. Nelson, R. F. Henderson and A. H. Kabanian, in addition to McCarthy.

Coach Bill Hultgren, who is in charge of the games, plans a triangular relay among Springfield College, Boston University and Bowdoin.

Earle Combs nearly goes his life for the Yankees cause last summer. So appreciative are they that they threaten to release him unless he shows his old-time form this year.

Mascot Dies
Eddie Bennett Pal of Ruth

New York, Jan. 15.—The luck which "weat" would champion- ships for three different baseball clubs today had deserted 31-year-old Eddie Bennett, famous since 1921 as the hunchback mascot of the Yankees.

Bennett died in his sleep in his furnished room at 115 W. 51st street—died among the photographs autographed by such players as his old "Babe" Ruth, and other Yankees stars.

Colonel Jacob Hupert, Ed Barrow and other dignitaries of the New York Yankees will attend the funeral at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic church tomorrow.

He helped bring seven American League pennants and five world's championships to the club. His mother and father died in 1928.

CHAMPS
LEAD N. U. AT BROWN

Two New England Intercollegiate champions will lead the Northeastern U. trackmen to Providence tomorrow afternoon, where they will open their record season against Brown University.

Capt. Roger Hudley, dace champion, will compete in the 100-yard dash, which he won in the 10 sound shot. James J. Randall, high jump record holder, will appear both his specialty and the dash, Jimmy's record stands at 6 feet 7 inches.

Another sure point-scorer, Dick Ellis, former Huntington assassin, who holds Husky records for the 440, 600 and 800-yard runs.

Everett Eldridge, such flash, is expected to cup the dash while Ray Henderson, Medford school boy hurdle champion, has a good chance of winning the high hurdle event.

The freshman tracksters, who meet the Brown Cubs, also have several outstanding athletes. Bob Quadey and Bob Gaudier, both former Newton high scorers, are entered in the sprint and 100-yard run, respectively.

Two other Newtonites, Jimmy Cahill, sprint flier, and Jimmy Cahill, shot-putter, will also make an excellent showing, according to Freshman Coach Gerry Talton.

Life
PLANS
Way

By HUGH F. BRADSHA

Fuller life plans for the gotten man are well on way. Administration leashed in Congress immediately pushed forward with a legislation bills following President's message.

Financial prejudices, in ever prior to the unfolding of unemployment insurance, of persons and unemployable men and children plans, evaporated for the Presidential plea that they be self sustaining.

Senator Wagner of New York, stalwart social legislation proponent, who has actively campaigned along the lines outlined, is already making plans for Senate hearings, although the House must first act.

The obvious moderation of Robert L. Wagner's political emphasis on monetary and price raising schemes to welcome development, So, the relaxing of reform elements in Social legislation as proposed, not frightening and business industry are seemingly ask the heart. All sound ideas have known for some time the day would soon come when private initiative would be encouraged to take over the responsibilities of recovery. Apparently here and the big question is whether the obstacles the last two years can be overcome. The next six to months will tell the story.

Notebook: The present pace of business and industry is a slide whether or not the present respite is real . . . Other than made only to be lost in the file . . . A continued soft inflation and subsidence of . . . that a distorted budget will it will be of immeasurable . . . The market itself is not hopeless or helpless position should be the advance in of what is to happen . . . is now in the critical stage

From a technical stock market point of view the rails are likely to hold the attention of all traders and investors who hold positions in movements of equities having intrinsic value. They did not loose on the downside as a result. Now if they are capable of continuing upward with sufficient force to batter down the barriers that have successfully restrained them for months bullisbness was warranted as well as an optimistic stand on the general economic outlook.

Briefs: For the casual follower of markets the tops of December may be used as a gauge of resistance for rails. . . A brisk active move through them will be an excellent indication that electrical equipment shares, which we devoted attention to in December, are very well. Recoveries from most recent declines have been spirited. . . And our chart readings are promising. We would not be tempted to make a profit as yet in such shares.

Reports on the shoe and leather industry, that was strongly to attention in these pages of a sort to warrant the profits should be allowed to Tendencies toward higher for both raw and finished units are noted and a reassurance pervades some in that profit margins will stretched somewhat over the term. Shoe buyers inter good and may be supposed fleet impressions gained in contacts with consumers.

GENERAL GEORGE WASHINGTON TO C. C. PINCKNEY

JULY 8, 1796.

"It is a fact too notorious to be denied, that the greatest embarrassments under which the administration of this Government labors, proceed from the counteraction of people among ourselves, who are more disposed to promote the views of another nation than to establish national character of their own."

Stop This Abuse! Free Postal Service

FREE postal service has become a scandal and abuse. The volume of "franked mail" that is to say, mail matter carried free of postage, is shattering all records. The amount of such material carried this year, if the proper postage were required, would mean a revenue to the Government of from $2 to $3 million dollars.

This is an item whose cost Postmaster-General Farley deducted from the actual postal deficit of $2 million dollars in order to show his disputed "surplus."

Huge quantities of correspondence, circulars, leaflets and copies of regulations from emergency divisions of the Federal Government have swelled this "franked mail" matter to its present vast proportions—not equalled or even approached in war times.

The heavy flow of such mail has continued steadily through the last eight months. There is no prospect of its curtailment, but on the contrary its continued increase is certain.

It is time that franked mail was stopped entirely and an end made of this drain upon the resources of our Government. It is Government extravagance in its most inexcusable form. Most of it serves no useful purpose. Much of it is mere electioneering by Federal office-holders—a device for keeping their names and their unimportant performances constantly before their supporters and constituents at home.

A great part of it is for the propagation of personal views or controverted theories of economics and finance with which the people generally have no concern.

No justification exists for burdening the taxpayers of the country for any of such purposes.

This is a subject which clamors for investigation and for prompt and thorough correction in the public interest.

New England to Lead She Always Has Led

Current indications are that the proud belief of New Englanders that this section leads and others follow will be maintained in the recovery from depression levels.

Winthrop L. Carter, president of the New England Council, points out that the highly developed industrial structure and reservoirs of skilled labor should aid this section in leading the recovery process.

In 1934 power production, bank deposits, retail sales and farm prices showed definite improvement and the groundwork was laid for the best period since 1930.

It is now up to the individual. The business is there, but it must be sought. It will not fly in the window. Hope and belief in the future of New England are not enough. It is haste that really makes better times.

More for Education It Is Needed

Dr. Charles E. Mackey advocates a substantial increase in appropriations for education as part of his program for school reform.

The new chairman of the Boston School Committee rightfully points out that educational budgets were frightfully cut during the depression years.

With billions being spent for public works of all kinds the greatest fundamental public work should not be neglected.

It may be that education is not a profit-making proposition on the surface. But deep down who dares question the worth of investments in better educational facilities.

It is a matter of public necessity that those who allocate funds for reforestation, road building and bridge construction be impressed with the importance of upbuilding the educational system that contributed so much to the rise of the nation.

Our Ships to Excel The Fried Plan

More power, say we, to Captain Fried, lately a heroic mariner and now an efficient executive of the Federal steamboat inspection service, in his determination to leave nothing untold to make American ships the safest in the world.

The Captain believes it would be wise for ships to remain longer in port in order to check their safety devices and machinery.

While such a plan might entail some hardship in competition with foreign lines, it would be more than compensated for if it led to our merchant marine's earning the reputation of being the safest afloat.

The Worker's Burden Supporting Office Holders

Reginald W. Bird of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Association, Inc., does well to tell his fellow citizens: "If there are four persons in your family you are really supporting a fifth person."

"Not very long ago every 17 Massachusetts workers supported one person in government service. Today every four workers support one government employee."

"Putting the taxpayer's burden in plain view of ALL is the surest way of getting it reduced."

By Elsie Robinson

They thought a woman in England the other day. She was a frail, middle-aged little person—very quiet.

She had happened to have her husband interested, but rather indifferently, in the years of her life.

One day she happened to see a thing which probably only drew a glance at her.

She had been told that she had lost the only thing which gave color to the empty years ahead—a fury at the fate which had robbed her.

The insanity of the defeated... like a tapping it closed down upon her brain. Clammy darkness—horror—unspeakable.

When it lifted, her husband lay dead. She had poisoned him. Laws being what they are, there was nothing to do but hang her.

WET AND PRAYED. But, as she struggled on the roof of the rope, two hundred and fifty men and women knelt in the street outside those dreadful walls.

And now, for that I am about to tell you of a woman named Elsie Robinson, a sentimental Socialist, etc., etc.

"A Timely Protest"

Reprinted from the Nashville Banner of December 14, 1934.

Elihu Hanson, general counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers Association, has revealed a situation affecting news dissemination in the radio field which is surprising, and which, because of its implications and easy opportunity for abuses, should receive much more than passing notice.

Comparatively few Americans are aware, as Mr. Hanson discloses, that a news agency subsidized by the French government has recently appeared in the United States, and has managed to establish contact with an American group for the purpose of broadcasting foreign news reports, with propaganda by easy inference, in the immediate background.

Every press association and every radio system in Europe is controlled and operated by the government where it is located. It is notorious that these publicity agents are compelled to maintain an attitude of subservience to government, to the dictator in command or to the party in power, to become in effect a political appendage; to disseminate propaganda under the color of news.

Powerful stations have been established by each government, and they preach their daily propaganda not only to the domestic population, but broadcast in various languages so as to create a favorable sentiment in foreign lands.

This procedure has become a recognized feature of European politics and national diplomacy. The rival countries across the waters, with their ever conflicting interests and intrigues, have more than at any time since the World War, are engaged in a strenuous race to increase the power and range of their stations, constantly widening their coverage of insidious approach to public opinion among foreign peoples.

The United States being some thousands of miles distant, and without a powerful propaganda machine, has been placed in this country a news agency subsidized and directly controlled by the French Government; and this agency has been proceeding to carry out its program of propaganda.

Mr. Hanson has performed a service in the past by his disclosure that he was made of the news, and that the first news witnessed in this country of a foreign nation, by indirectly and without the least surely, securing access to American radio facilities, and that the news was the allowance of such an indefensible, and, apparently, illegal precedent.
